

LABOR'S DAY IN JANESVILLE

Hundreds of Visitors Here To Celebrate the Holiday.

AN IMPRESSIVE PARADE OF UNIONS

The Big Procession Was a Credit to All the Participants—Speeches, Games and Entertainments This Afternoon.

Promptly at ten o'clock this morning the notes of martial music announced to the throngs that had gathered along Milwaukee street the coming of Labor's big parade. Fred Schmidt on horseback, acting as marshal of the day, led the big procession. Following him came the speakers in carriages and after them two vehicles containing the members of the Women's Union Label league and a beautiful float of twenty little girls dressed in white and waving flags. T. J. McKeigue, Edward Falter, and A. A. Blunt headed the first band of musicians, which was followed by forty members of Carpenters & Joiners union No. 836. An interesting float presenting men at work with saw and plane followed.

Fine Showing of Painters.
By far the most picturesque body of men in the parade was the Brotherhood of Painters—all dressed in white duck suits and natty canvas caps, and each of the thirty carrying a small cane with red, white, and blue ribbons. The Plumbers' union came next and they were followed by the Electrical Workers, the Sheet Metal Workers, the Bricklayers and Masons, and a float designed by the Building Trades Council, presenting the varied crafts in a realistic manner.

Boot & Shoe Workers.
Boot & Shoe Workers' union No. 340, with about fifty men in line—the largest showing made by any of the unions—followed, and after them came the Cigar Makers and a float preventing certain maxima and precepts regarding union made goods. The Retail Clerks, the smiling Typographical union men with three boys carrying their huge banner, the Barbers' union, twenty members of the Journeymen Tailors' union, the Woodworkers, Machinists, members of Boot & Shoe Workers' union No. 240, and the Leather Workers followed.

Forty Teams in Line.
Team Drivers' union No. 137 made an excellent showing. It was headed by the first division of the Imperial band. There were over forty pairs of nicely groomed horses, appropriately decorated with little flags, in line and the long caravan stretched from the Corn Exchange to the Hotel Myers. This section of the parade was headed by the four water wings.

Made Short Address.
Before the big procession moved J. B. Brower, the speaker of the day, was introduced to the participants by J. S. Osborn of the Carpenters' union.

KUROPATKIN ASKS THAT SIX MORE DIVISIONS COME

He Requests the Czar to Send Reinforcements To Hold Kouroki Back.

(Special by Scripps-McRae.)
St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—The czar has received a telegram from Gen. Kuropatkin, asking for immediate dispatch to the far east of six army corps.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—The war office in response to inquiries, has authorized the statement that its interpretation of Gen. Kuropatkin's reference to the first Siberian army corps is to the effect that Gen. Stackelberg managed to retreat before being fully surrounded by the Japanese force which almost annihilated Gen. Orloff's command. Gen. Kuropatkin's report states that he has been joined by the first Siberian army corps at Yental station.

Ended Sunday.
Tokio, Sept. 5.—The long continued attack upon Liangyang by the Japanese ended Sunday morning in the capture of the city.

The Japanese losses were heavy, but the number of casualties has not yet been ascertained.

The attack upon the Russian southern and western outposts are unceasing throughout Saturday.

There occurred frequent assaults Saturday and Sunday mornings. The general attack upon the Russian town was renewed, resulting in the triumph of the Japanese—the occupation of Liangyang and all its environs.

Kuropatkin's Retreat Checked.
Simulintun, Sept. 5.—Contradictory reports come from the fighting about Yental. The only things which seem certain is that Liangyang has been taken by the Japanese after most of the Russian stores and ammunition had been destroyed, and that Kuropatkin's retreat to Mukden has been checked.

His introduction took place on Wall street and after a few remarks three rousing cheers were given for him.

Vaudeville Attractions.
Vaudeville stages have been erected on North Main street, South River street, North Bluff, the Courthouse park, and the Corn exchange square. The following entertainers will make the circuit of these stands this afternoon: "Geer," with the marvellous Roman rings; Jackson & Sparks, comedy sketch team; Marion Livingston, acrobatic dancer; Harry Burns, bag puncher; William Johnson, black-face comedian in melodies and parodies; and several other artists.

Mayor J. F. Hutchinson will deliver the address of welcome in the Courthouse park at 1:30. He will be followed by James H. Brower of Elgin, member of the Carpenters' union in that city, and speaker of the day. The athletic events will be held in front of the city hall at 2:30. The committee in charge of the general arrangements consists of T. J. McKeigue, Fred Schmidt, John Connors, Frank Gibbs, and A. A. Blunt. The day's celebration will end with a grand ball at Assembly hall tonight, at which prizes for the best gentleman and lady waltzer will be awarded.

In Chicago.
Chicago, Sept. 5.—With twenty-four thousand men in line as compared with seventy-five thousand last year the annual Labor day parade started at ten o'clock this morning. Notwithstanding the action of the Chicago Federation of Labor in declaring in favor of a parade outing for the unions and families, some unions determined to show their strength in the usual parade. Prominent in the line of march was twenty-six unions of striking butchers with President Donnelly as marshal. The Tanners, Horseshoers and Freight Handlers were also included. The Butchers received an ovation along the line. At the union picnic at Thornton park addresses were made by C. S. Deenen and L. P. Crlinger, respectively republican and democratic candidates for governor.

At Toledo.
Toledo, Sept. 5.—Five thousand marchers turned out for the Labor day demonstration today. Owing to the objection raised by the Moulders' union the employees of the S. M. Jones company of which the late Mayor Jones was head, was not allowed to parade. The Jones employees held a parade of their own covering the same route as the official parade.

THREE TO ONE BAD ON EYES

H. Jacke Assaulted by Drunks Saturday Night on Main Street.

While walking peacefully down South Main street Saturday night H. Jacke was accosted by three men, one large and two medium sized who had started from port with too heavy a cargo on the upper decks for the amount of ballast. The largest one and the leader said: "Well, what are you going to do about it?" and before Mr. Jacke had time to realize what he was up against, was struck full in the nose. Jacke was armed only with an umbrella but from its after appearance must have used it in the best possible manner, in the scuffle between himself and the three he claims to have received two black eyes, a bloody nose and a cut in the arm. It is thought the trio are the same who were ejected from the street car on the way up from the Electric park on account of their unruly actions and abusive talk. Mr. Jacke says he cannot imagine what was meant by the remark as he could not recognize anyone of them, nor does he remember ever having met the three before.

OLD WOMAN TAKES HER OWN LIFE

Mrs. Henry J. Quish of Madison Ends Her Existence by the Suicide Path.

(Special to The Gazette.)
Madison, Wis., Sept. 5.—Mrs. Henry J. Quish, one of the oldest residents of Dane county, committed suicide at her home in this city Saturday by hanging. Despondency over ill health caused her to commit the rash act. She leaves a husband and ten children.

Of Interest to Builders.

Prof. Charles L. Norton of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology says that a great deal more care should be taken in protecting steel work and wrought iron work from corrosion. Concrete is a far better safeguard than stone or terra cotta against fire, he says. The Boston skyscrapers are viewed with suspicion by Prof. Norton.

Churches on Bridges.

The custom of building churches on bridges was common a hundred years and more ago. Several of these quaint old buildings are still left in Europe. The Chapel of Our Lady still stands on the bridge which spans the Don at Rotterdam. The little chapel was built in the fifteenth century and was restored about a hundred years ago. For several years, however, it has been used as a tobacco shop.

Insects Don't Touch Rice.

A remarkable fact connected with the rice plant is its almost entire immunity from the attacks of insects, and from those diseases which infect the cereals and other vegetable growths, as also that it supplies a wholesome diet for one-half the population of the world.

MADISON POLICE ARE VERY CRUEL

Object to One Man Hugging Two Girls on School Steps After Dark.

(Special to The Gazette.)
Madison, Wis., Sept. 5.—Madison, the capital city and pride of the state of Wisconsin, has the distinction of having more old maid in proportion to size than any other city in the state. There are on the average three girls to every man. This circumstance is largely attributed to the fact that a great many young men, who learn professions at the state university, open offices in this city and have so small a patronage that they are unable to support a woman. The city is overrun with young lawyers and physicians whose practice is so small that they barely make a living. Then, too, a large percentage of the masculine sex is unselfish and care for nothing but business affairs and worldly pleasure. The fact that there are more girls than boys here has caused the police of the city much trouble. Boys, accompanied by two girls, haunt the steps of schoolhouses and churches every night and annoy the neighborhood by hugging and kissing each other. The police have issued a strict edict that unless this spooning is stopped arrests will follow.

TUMBLING OUT OF A 3RD STORY WINDOW

Little Three Year Old Daughter of Tim Gerrity Had Bad Fall Yesterday.

A little three year old daughter of Tim Gerrity who resides in one of the apartments of the business block on the east side of North Main street, fell from a rear window in the third story to the court on the roof of the first story, yesterday afternoon. A wire stretched midway between the first and third stories broke the child's fall but raised two ugly ridges on her limbs. There were a few swellings on the head and some bruises were all the injuries sustained. No bones were broken. A rickety screen in the window, against which the child was leaning, was responsible for the fall.

MACHINERY STARTS: NEW POWER PLANT

New Mechanism Will Soon Be Running Smoothly—Old Plant Is Shut Down.

The machinery of the Janesville Electric Co.'s new power plant at the upper dam was started Friday and is today running steadily. Last night there was some trouble with the shaft and the lights in the city were out for about an hour. Occasionally the boxes run hot but the new mechanism is working as well as may be expected of new machinery. The street car engine is the only machine left in the old plant below the Milwaukee street bridge. The new plant with occasional assistance from the Monterey station, will run the cars and furnish the lights for the city.

COACH CURTIS IS IN CHARGE TODAY

Will Superintend the Badger Football Squad From Now On.

(Special to The Gazette.)
Madison, Wis., Sept. 5.—Head Coach Arthur H. Curtis of the University of Wisconsin football team returned to Madison and after a conference with Assistant Coach Cochran left on a hunting trip after prairie chickens. There are only a dozen men in the Badger training camp at Lake Monona and Coach Curtis has concluded that they are doing well enough under the assistant coach. Mr. Curtis will return in about a week when the squad is expected to have increased to twice its present size. A new man of great promise has reported. He is Grogan, last year's star halfback on the Marquette college, Milwaukee, team and a teammate of the celebrated Badger halfback, Vanderboom, on the Marinette high school eleven. As the season approaches the outlook in the Wisconsin camp becomes exceedingly bright with the abundance of material, although the development of a quarterback is still a difficult question.

GUND BREWERY IS CHANGING STOCK

La Crosse Brewery Has Increased Its Capital Stock to $2,000,000.

(Special to The Gazette.)
Madison, Wis., Sept. 5.—Revised articles fixing the capital stock at $2,000,000 were filed Saturday with the secretary of state by the John Gund Brewing company of La Crosse by John Gund, president, and Henry Gund, secretary.

BADLY BITTEN BY VERY VICIOUS DOG

Seven Year-Old Frank Lentz Was Attacked While Passing Farm West of City.

Frank Lentz, a seven year old boy residing west of the city, was found in a precarious condition by the roadside three miles from here on Friday. He had been attacked by a large dog belonging to a neighboring farmer and his right arm had been so badly bitten that a large quantity of blood had escaped from the wounds, leaving him in a very weak condition. He was brought to this city and cared for by a physician. Unless blood poisoning sets in he will recover.

At Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 5.—The Labor day celebration today was celebrated by a parade of organized men, including the striking meat packers. Twelve thousand men were in line. This afternoon the speaking at the park is to be by Thos. R. Watson, populist candidate for president; Jos. W. Folk, democratic candidate for governor; Cyrus P. Walbridge, publican candidate; and others.

TRADE SEEMS TO BE BOOMING

Last Week's Report of Dunn's Agency Shows Rapid Progress in All Branches.

CHICAGO IS HANDICAPPED AS YET

Present Outlook Is for a Very Busy Autumn—No Let Up in the Business at Present.

(Special by Scripps-McRae.)
Chicago, Sept. 5.—The weekly review of trade in the Chicago district, published by R. G. Dunn & Co., is as follows:

"An increasing movement of commodities and heavier dealings at the banks reflect a larger volume of business. There are, however, irregular conditions operating against the possibility of general activity, and it is unfortunate that these dominate the industrial situation, causing considerable idle capacity and loss of earnings."

"Notwithstanding the adverse effect of labor disputes, it is gratifying to find that retail trade is showing reasonable enlargement. Reports indicate that in both city and country stocks of merchandise a steady reduction is going on, opening the way for early replenishment."

"This feature provides the basis for a material accession to new requirements, and is commensurate with the growing demand for staple merchandise which now characterizes the jobbing market. The latter has been much stimulated in fall lines, buyers having appeared in greater number than during last week."

Interior Needs Are Large.

"Recent unfavorable crop news does not appear adversely to have affected buying to the extent which had been feared. It generally is conceded that needs for the interior are large, and merchants consequently are expecting trade improvement. Current transactions exhibit gain in the important dry goods branches, in footwear and food products. The millinery and dress goods season opened auspiciously and more demand is noted for high grade furniture, carpets and silverware."

"Farm products are being moved to market in heavy volume, but the high price to consumers has lessened the demand, and shipments from this point—3,368,177 bushels—are 10.8 per cent less than those of a year ago."

Wheat and Oats Decline.

"Compared with the closings a week ago corn advanced 1/4 cent a bushel, but declines are seen in wheat, 1/2 cent, and oats, 3/4 cent. Speculative dealings were less prominent, but the cash market felt the lack of foreign demand for breadstuffs."

"The extension of labor trouble in the packing trade hurt the market for provisions, sales being light and values weaker, in pork 15 cents a barrel and ribs 20 cents."

"Currency for movement of the crops has been in greater request, and shipments during this and next month probably will continue to increase."

"Failures reported in the Chicago district number twenty-six, against twenty-eight last week and twenty-six a year ago."

NOMINEE VICE PRESIDENT FAIRBANKS

Charles Warren Fairbanks, who is taking Kansas and Missouri in his candidacy for vice president on the republican national ticket, is one of the most interesting features of the present campaign thus far. His addresses have been attended by thousands of former democrats and populists who have come over to the republican side of the fence. As a public speaker, Mr. Fairbanks is strong and forceful and his discussion of the questions at stake are well received.

TREASURY TANGLE GROWS ALMOST INTO A FEUD NOW

Two Sets of Gate Keepers Are at the State Fair, Milwaukee, Doing Duty Today.

(Special to The Gazette.)

Madison, Wis., Sept. 5.—A clash over the custody of the gate receipts of the Wisconsin state fair is seemingly inevitable at Milwaukee this morning. State Treasurer T. M. Furler, the recent appointee of Governor La Follette, has made the appointment of a set of gate-keepers and ticket-sellers and the same has been done by ex-State Treasurer Kempf, who still maintains that he is the legal custodian of the commonwealth, although ousted from office by Governor La Follette for failure to furnish an additional surety bond of $350,000. The state law makes the state treasurer the cashier of the state fair and the official is required to appoint the ticket sellers. The managers of the fair have recognized the appointees of Treasurer Furler and declare they will not allow the sellers appointed by Mr. Kempf to enter the grounds other than as private and unofficial patrons of the fair. Mr. Furler was at the grounds at the opening and is determined to maintain the position he believes he is placed in by the law and the appointment of the governor. The attempt of Mr. Kempf to get the supreme court to reinstate him in office comes before that tribunal at Madison Tuesday morning.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Monday, September 5, 1864.—Italy Round the Flag Boys.—There is to be a meeting in the Court room this evening for the purpose of taking necessary measures to organize for the fall campaign. The cops have made their nominations, hung their dirty banner of treason upon the outer wall and challenge us to the contest. We must organize and whip them, even as the gallant Sherman is thrashing their old political yoke-fellows down at Atlanta. It is expected by every soldier at the front that we would stay at home, must whip the rebels in their rear, and we must do it. Madison has already had a glorious meeting and this, the banner county of the state, should not be behind. Sherman has given the first gun to the campaign and Farragut and Grant will soon follow. The McClellan banner goes down in the same ratio as the stars and stripes go up. Let us organize for the fight.

New Meat Market.—Messrs. Hanly & Scarell have an inviting meat market on Main street, which they have something to say about in another column.

An adopted daughter of Mr. Renssafer White of the town of Milton, died on Friday evening last from the effect of a sting from a bee on her wrist. It probably stung some nerve as it immediately threw her into convulsions and after lingering for about twelve hours she died.

Description of Fort Morgan.—Fort Morgan is a much older fort than Fort Gaines and is far better constructed. It was built for the defense of Mobile Bay and was erected on Mobile Point for that purpose. It is a very strong work, its only weak point is that it can be laid to have any, is on the land side. It occupies the slight of Fort Bowyn, noted in the war of 1812. By direct fire the fort is invulnerable, it having no casement in the outer walls which are protected by glass of sand, in which all the shot and shell in the world might be innocently buried. The guns are mounted on barbette and the center of the works are bomb proof quarters. Throwing shells over and dropping them inside of the work would be no damage to the defenders as the troops have only to keep away from the area and they have no occasion to be there, for no fighting is expected to be done there.

Coming Attractions.

SAN TOY.

Mr. John C. Fisher, who will present "San Toy" in this city shortly with James T. Powers at the head of the big company, has made a very large fortune in the past few years with musical comedies and could have made much greater profits if his ideas of play production were less extravagant. If there is one thing more than another which Mr. Fisher likes, however, it is to do things right and let the cost be what it may. It is strict compliance with this policy that caused him to immediately engage James T. Powers, Geo. K. Porteus and as many members of the original American cast as he could find when he decided last summer to make a big production of "San Toy." Something like twenty weeks of the time that the

Mr. Fisher considers himself fortunate in signing four of them.

In undertaking a tour which reaches from New York city to San Francisco and then through the south, John C. Fisher's "San Toy" company will cover something like 22,000 miles on the trip. At first thought this might suggest many hardships for the players, but when it is known that Mr. Fisher always provides special train service for his people traveling has no terrors for them. These "San Toy Specials" will consist of six cars, three for the exclusive use of the members of the company and the other three for the baggage and scenery.

Myers Opera House will have a representative melodrama, "A Little

FROM "SAN TOY" WHICH APPEARS AT MYERS GRAND TUESDAY

Chinese musical comedy will be on the road this season will be spent in territory where it has never before been presented, and while less expensive artists might all the bill in the estimation of some managers, Mr. Fisher's views are different and he wanted just as many originals as he could get. When he caused a complete new production to be made, throwing away everything in the way of scenery and costumes that had been used before, and when everything was in readiness for the opening of the season he felt that nothing had been overlooked, in this the newspapers and public coincided, so when "San Toy" is offered on the local stage a genuine treat may be looked for.

The six "Little Wives" in "San Toy" are quite as attractive a sextette of fair females as have been introduced in any of the recent musical plays and their specialty of the distinct hits of the play. In the organization of the company which Mr. John C. Fisher will send here to present "San Toy" every possible effort was made to get the six girls who first played the diminutive wives at Daly's theatre and Outcast," for its attraction tonight. The production is in its third season, it has been almost entirely rewritten, new characters introduced and elaborate stage effects, said to be the most novel ever seen, added for the opening of the new season.

In E. J. Carpenter's "A Little Outcast," which comes to the Myers Grand, the playwright has plunged straight to the heart of things dramatic, his convictions and sense of humor as the brush of a painter putting a vision on canvas.

While John C. Fisher's chief desire when he engaged the chorus for "San Toy" was to get first of all good voices he found when he had the many dozens of girls gathered for rehearsal that they constituted the best looking lot of girls he had ever been able to secure. Mr. Fisher claims that this amalgamation of beauty in "San Toy" was largely accidental, but those who are familiar with his taste for comeliness as well as vocal ability in the auxiliary department of his companies think otherwise.

Mystery of the Rain Tree.
The mystery of the rain tree of the Canaries is a cloud that hovers about it constantly; this is condensed to water, which saturates the leaves and, falling from them in constant drops, keeps the cactuses which are in excavation beneath them always full of water.

"Pittsburg Phil."

Career of Noted Turf Plunger Who Has Just Retired.

The greatest turf plunger the world has ever seen is George C. Smith of Pittsburg, better known as "Pittsburg Phil." Smith's sensational operations have won him international fame, and the fact that he has just retired from the horse arena because of ill health has aroused wide comment.

In addition to his extensive "plunging" "Pittsburg Phil" also operated a large racing stable at various times. Jockey Shaw, one of the ablest lads who ever ridden a saddle grip, rode for the stable until he was "set down" by the Jockey club for riding a couple of races that aroused the suspicion of the stewards.

Although opinions add stories about "Pittsburg Phil" differ, it is a certainty that he is ill and broken down from the continued warfare that he has conducted against the bookmakers.

He has been one of the biggest figures on the turf for more than twelve years, and he has materially aided in making turf history on more than one occasion. Coming some time after the famous plunger, Walton, "Pittsburg Phil's" methods were so different from those of the reckless Yankee that he soon attracted attention and made the bookmakers respect the color of his money.

"Pittsburg Phil" was a race horse player that was far ahead of his time, being practically the first plunger from the ranks of those that play horses on form. When he began to play the horses in the pool room at Pittsburg, handicappers were few and far between. The bookmakers were just gaining a foothold, and that system of betting had begun to crowd the auction pools and the mutuals off the race tracks. The bookmakers knew little about their own game, just enough not to lay odds that would make a losing book. The ignorance of the bookies led to the post of odds that were false and entirely governed by the money bet and by the auction pools. That gave the youthful plunger an opportunity of which he was not slow to avail himself, and he graduated from the pool room to the race track with a rush. Gradually his operations grew larger, and in a short space of time the two dollar bettor, wagered thousands. At that time he simply played his own judgment. Then he began to improve his methods. He employed men to watch the horses, watch the money and men. Then he began riding horses of his own and also engaged the role of bookmaker. There is where the wear and tear of his nervous system began. His own horse, King Cadmus, was the medium of his most successful plunge, and the race noted Phil over $100,000. It was a close finish, and about a half dozen horses finished on a tie.

Cool as an icicle Phil watched the race, and when a bystander said to him, "I think your horse is beaten," Phil never batted his eye, saying, "I think my horse won by a head," and he did. At different stages of his career as a horse owner Phil threatened to quit the ranks of the owners, as he claimed that owning horses influenced his judgment a bit at times, and cost him some money. But he remained an owner, until the tangle with the Jockey club, when he was advised to dispose of his horses.

The reason for all the tangles that Smith got into in late years was Jockey Willie Shaw and runners. Every time that Shaw would ride a bad race on a favorite or some supposed contender the papers would carry stories of "Pittsburg Phil's" big whiplings on some other horse in the race. Two years ago the Jockey club took the matter up and rescinded Shaw's license and gave Smith his orders. The latter tried hard to let his Jockey fight, but it was not until this year that Shaw got a license, and he was signed by the Durgen-Whitney stable.

Ready to Wear

SUITS.

From now on every day will bring the new ideas in Tailored Suits and Separate Skirts, the result of a three weeks' stay in the New York market. Stayles are fully established for the coming season and the new showings bring out all that is best from the eastern manufacturers. The new mannish suits in the popular tourist style are to be much worn—also the neat 26 inch length coat suit. The skirts are in pleated effects of various styles and are quite full. The suits range in price from $12.50 to $30 and the skirts from $5 to $10. These lines are of weights just right for present use. Of course only a small part of the new purchase is here but enough to interest early buyers.

VERDICT OF THE PARTY

From the report of the Committee on Credentials to the REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, which was unanimously adopted by that convention, June 22d, 1904.

Your committee report it to be their final judgment that the convention which elected John C. Spooner, J. V. Quarles, J. W. Babcock and Emil Banach as delegates at large, and their alternates at large, to this convention from the state of Wisconsin WAS THE REGULAR CONVENTION OF THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN WISCONSIN, and that the delegates elected by it are the regular elected delegates at large from the state of Wisconsin to the republican convention, and, as such, are entitled to seats in this convention.

DESTITUTE OF ARGUMENT.
The democratic party enters the campaign of 1904 without the shadow of an argument and with no semblance of an issue. The nation is prosperous, confidence is enjoyed to the fullest extent and people generally are satisfied.

When Cleveland was elected to his first term the slogan of the campaign was: "We want a change." The spirit of restlessness which prevailed was largely due to too much prosperity.

The nation was on the verge of a similar collapse two years ago, but the era of wild speculation has passed and the republican party through its chief magistrate has given stock gamblers to understand that there is a limit which must be observed.

As a result the party has made enemies in Wall street but this is to its credit. For every vote lost at the money center a score have been gained among the masses.

The republican party is constructive as well as progressive. When it gained control eight years ago, after four years of democratic misrule, it demonstrated ability to construct from the wreckage of paralyzed industries, a bankrupt treasury and blighted confidence, a new era, inspired by hope, and in a short twelve months the machinery of the nation was again intact, and from every city and hamlet the busy hum of activity spoke of confidence restored.

The republican party possesses the intelligence, courage and ability to deal with great international problems, and because of this fact the nation enjoys the respect of all nations today as never before.

The war with Spain, prompted by a spirit of humanity, and resulting in the freedom of Cuba from the thralldom of bondage worse than slavery, was a signal victory for the nation, and the far reaching results of this conquest will tell for civilization for generations to come. Cuba was not only redeemed, but Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands as well.

Much credit is given to the late President McKinley and to President Roosevelt for success attained, but more credit is due to the intelligence and spirit of the nation, who placed its destinies in the hands of a party which possessed the ability to serve the nation wisely.

The democratic party is not only non-progressive, but it is destructive as well. It is fortunate for the nation that the party has only been permitted to handle the reins of national government, in complete control, but four years since the war of the rebellion.

The last Cleveland administration was strictly democratic and what happened is of such recent date that comment is unnecessary. From a prosperous people we became a nation of tramps. Thousands of industries were paralyzed and enforced idleness was the rule and not the exception at manufacturing centers.

Nothing was said about a short work day because the demand for an opportunity to work was universal. The national treasury was bankrupt and borrowed money to the extent of $163,000,000 was necessary to pay current expenses.

This was democracy in full swing. Think you that the nation has gone daffy in eight short years? Not to any large extent, as the votes will show in November.

What has the party to offer that it did not possess eight years ago? Absolutely nothing. To be sure it has an exhibition two miles, Cleveland and Bryan which it attempts to exhibit under the same canvas on a compromise platform.

The exhibition while amusing, is not a drawing card, and neither Judge Parker or his colleague, Mr. Davis, will have occasion to change their occupation at the close of the season.

The democratic party is destitute of argument on all national questions and it will continue to be out and injured after November.

LABOR DAY.
This is Labor Day and observed throughout the country by organized labor as a holiday. It commands attention and respect because back of it is an organization 2,000,000 strong. While this represents but a fraction of the labor of the country, it is strong because of organization and in proportion to its strength is also its degree of responsibility.

Labor has a perfect right to organize, and is entitled to every encouragement so long as its efforts are confined to bettering labor conditions in wholesome and legitimate ways.

The great rank and file of men who belong to these organizations are honest, faithful men. As a rule they are skillful artisans. As individual workmen a large majority of them are satisfied with conditions, recognizing the fact that the ability and disposition to work is the greatest blessing that comes to any life.

To men who think, and many of these men are thoughtful and observing, the fact is apparent that the great rank and file of humanity are employees. This is necessarily so because the demand for employers is limited. There is nothing that can change these conditions because the law of supply and demand regulates, and this law is as ironclad as any law that was ever written.

The money invested in industries which furnish liberal employment, is the most useful money in existence, and the men who own it should be regarded as friends and not enemies of labor.

This class of men and money are usually so regarded and in the small industries where employer and employee are in close contact, relations are usually pleasant. In the larger industries these conditions are not possible and yet the same interests exist, and mutual welfare should always be considered.

There is not only no reason why capital and labor should be at variance, but there is every reason why they should be on the best of terms. Capital which employs labor is successful in proportion to loyalty and faithfulness on the part of employees, and every employee depends upon capital for employment.

SUNDAY REST CONGRESS.
One of the most, if not the most important congresses that will convene at the St. Louis exposition this year is the Sunday Rest Congress, which will be in session from the 11th to the 14th of October.

Some 70 speakers, many from abroad, will be in attendance, and the question will be handled, not from the standpoint of Sabbath observance, as a religious duty, but from the well demonstrated theory that the world needs a day of rest at least once a week.

The fact is generally recognized that there is a limit to endurance even in machinery. That the horse who works for six days in the week needs the rest of Sunday, and that man is at his best both physically and mentally when refreshed by freedom from care and work with the relaxation which the Sabbath affords.

If the labor world would get out of Sunday the rest which the day provides there would be less clamor for an eight-hour work day.

People who have occasion to be in St. Louis while the congress is in session, will be interested in the proceedings.

Harmony prevails on the surface in the ranks of democracy, but discontent is not difficult to discover, and much of the support will be of a negative character.

There is no factional fight on the presidential electors and there is no reason why they should not receive every republican vote in the state.

The governor's automobile is touring in the northern part of the state. It beats a $55 train to a standstill and while not free from odor, there is no taint of scandal.

Judge Parker declares that the gold standard is irrevocably established. In spite of the fact that he has twice voted against it.

PRESS COMMENT

Menasha Record: As expected, Houser denies everything but the omnipotence of Bob.

Oshkosh Times: School days are so near at hand that many school-ma'ams are already putting on an austere look.

Des Moines Register-Leader: The Japanese are reported as making night attacks. How are the correspondents to get their photographs? Japan seems to have forgotten the purpose of war.

Cincinnati Commercial Tribune: The czar and Mr. La Follette declare that neither mediation nor arbitration will be tolerated and both are in line for a beautiful Jeffersonian.

Oshkosh Northwestern: The republican Jonah in this state is bound to stick to the ship until it either founders or the crew discovers the cause of all its troubles and casts him overboard.

Madison Journal: Chicago has more girls than boys on her school list; but then, it should be remembered that a number of schoolboys have been recently hanged for murder in the wicked city.

Tomah Monitor-Herald: A traveling man says that the stretch of dangerous reputations in the capital park at Madison is worse than that of decaying dead fish on the shores of Lake Mendota.

Sheboygan Journal: The country threshing engine is out on its annual spree. Its first victim happens to be near Manitowish. If the St. Louis exposition wanted to furnish real sport, they would get up a bull fight between a threshing engine and an automobile.

Nellisville Times: While the executive branch of the state government is sneering at the supreme court, which is a co-ordinate branch, and a darned sight more respectable, the people hold in almost sacred respect the supreme court, and will abide by its decision.

El Paso Herald: With all these murderous mangling shells flying about, famine stricken Porth Arthur reluctantly passes up the chop-uey of the city's Chinese restaurants—there are limits to the mystery which can be allowed to envelop food.

La Crosse Chronicle: When business men look back and review the times of distress from 1893 to 1897, when there was a democratic national administration, and then think of the good times since the republican party came into power, they show no disposition to aid in bringing about a change of administration. Do you wonder at it?

Green Bay Review: Riddle that is far more telling than any ever heaped upon Joe Folk by his enemies has been hurled at him by the La Follette press. They blend the features of the king of the south wing with those of the St. Louis circuit attorney. Give Wisconsin a Joe Folk and Wisconsin would get a grand jury, to sit at Madison, in the bargain.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: There ought to be a genuine boom in ships which were sent to the bottom the ship building business shortly. Spain is now planning to replace the sea by Uncle Sam's navy, and long before that order is filled the czar will be in the market for a good lot. In addition to this it is likely that the Mikado will want a few on his own account.

Youngstown (Ohio) Telegram: There is one bright spot in the future for the people of Ohio. The loemen are about to scrap. The artificial ice people declare that it is a menace to the public health to allow ice to be cut from stagnant pools and germ-laden creeks and rivers and they will meet in Columbus to connect a law that will make it unlawful for ice to be cut and sold from ponds, rivers and lakes. Now, if the gas, people and coal men only get to scrapping among themselves and take their hands out of the people's pockets to pound each other Buckeye citizens will have occasion to greatly rejoice.

Milwaukee Sentinel: If the people of Wisconsin can be convinced that Robert M. La Follette, whose administration smells to heaven of scandals, great and small, whose personal integrity has been openly challenged by two high minded men who belonged to his immediate following, is a purer and more patriotic man than any one of the five gentlemen so grossly insulted in the "Collier" article they must believe that Wisconsin has fallen upon evil days. If Gov. La Follette can make himself believe that he can win permanent success by playing the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde role he is counting on accomplishing more than mortal man has ever been able to perform. Even John Alexander Dowie, the premier religious charlatan, can not hold permanent sway over his misguided, fanatical followers, and the political Dowie, R. M. La Follette, is in much more serious difficulties because of pending exposures to be added to those which already have proved that his administration is honeycombed with corruption.

Touched 'Em Off.
There was a celebration in Hume

Robinson's town, the Colfax (la.) Clipper, July 14th, and this is the way Ham tells of one of the features not on the regular program:

Reuben Alexander Green, who comes into town regularly once a year—generally on Christmas—dropped into Mitchellville last Monday to celebrate the glorious with Brother Marmion. He provided himself with a pint of peanuts, a vial of lemon extract, a pocketful of cigars, and a 3,000-caliber cannon fire-cracker which he proceeded to stuff into his hip-pocket along with a quarter section of his coat-tail, letting the cracker protrude with tempting ostentation as he moved swaggering through the streets. Of course the boys noticed him at once and marked him for a sacrifice. They followed him about till he bucked up to a lady friend and began to talk sweet. Then one of the boys bumped him while the other applied a lighted match to the fuse of that cracker and made haste to get out of range. The explosion followed immediately and R. A. G. came down a few seconds later from the clouds with nothing on but his initials and a big black blister. In the spot lately vacated by the cracker, there wasn't enough of his Sunday togs left (according to a facetious Mitchellvillian who witnessed the incident) "to pad a crutch," and it took Reuben Alexander less than a few minutes to harness his oxen and make for home to get a fresh supply of celebration apparel.—Western Publisher.

ROCK CO. AND HUMAN SLAVERY

RECOGNIZED THE INSTITUTION AFTER WAR WAS OVER.

HER RECORD IS WRITTEN

In Volume Three of the Miscellany in Register of Deeds' Office—Shocking Discovery.

Though slavery never flourished here, it is interesting to recall on this day devoted to the exaltation of the dignity and nobility of labor, that Rock county once not only officially recognized that impious institution but gave her hand and seal that the children and heirs of a slaveholder might have and hold some $14,000 worth of human beings and their progeny forever. For she stood witness to the ownership and therefore ready at all times to establish the claims and rights of those into whose hands the property might be delivered.

Look in Book and See. Anyone at all doubtful on this score may "look in" the book and see.

It is all recorded in one of the old, musty volumes recently installed in the new racks in the register of deeds' office. Vol. 3 of the "Miscellany," commencing with page 110, presents the curious listing. It is the record of the commissioners appointed by the circuit court of Fayette county, Kentucky, to allot to the widow, her dower, the slaves, and real estate of David Castleman, deceased, and to divide the residue amongst some nine children and heirs. The real estate listed in this apportionment comprises some 1,300 acres in towns of Porter and Fulton, Rock county, and it is interesting to note that the highest valuation placed on any of this property is $6 an acre.

The favored acres were included in the n. w. 1-4 of section 12, town 1 range 11. Only $2.50 an acre is allowed for the n. w. 1-4 of section 3 in the same range and township. The latter property is now included in farms of B. Hardwick, C. Crowley, and M. Sweeney, and the former in the forms of Patrick Laughran and William Gardner, all in the town of Porter. That was way back in 1853, when the commissioners were first appointed. Their work seems not to have been finished for a long period thereafter and the record here was not made until November, 1866, C. C. Keeler being the then register of deeds.

Some Were Unsound. But we have wandered somewhat afield, owing doubtless to an inherent weakness, peculiar to the whole human race, conjuring and juggling with real estate values. Let us turn at once to the human valuations so religiously recorded by Mr. Weirick's predecessors in furtherance of an obvious plan to keep a down-trodden and helpless race in eternal servitude. Regardless of President Lincoln's emancipation proclamation of Sept. 22, 1862, and the surrender of Lee in April, 1865, there was Hannah, eight years of age, given to Mrs. Tandy by the testator in 1848. She is listed at $200. The valuations of slaves advanced to children and heirs, before the decease of the testator, are to be subtracted from the allotments made by the commissioners. Malinda, aged 43, is worth $500 and Washington, aged 35, is worth $550. Although York Linsley had but one eye injured, he is but twenty-five years old and is worth $300. Hannah, aged 13, is unsound and is only listed at $150. Ben and Aggy, his wife, aged 37 and 60 respectively, seem to be worse than worthless and $100 is charged against the estate for their keeping. Jacob is fifty-six years old and has lost one eye, yet holds his own at $250. William, aged nine, is a promising youngster and is listed at $650. His sister, Sarah, is a seven-year-old, worth $400.

Who Were the Castleman's? The senior Castleman appears to have been wealthy in this world's goods. He owned broad acres in Wisconsin, Indiana and Kentucky. The heirs were D. C. Tandy, Sam M. Breckenridge, doubtless sons-in-law, and Lewis, David, Mary, Ann, George, Humphreys, John H., Fannie, and Sarah Belle Castleman. None of them seem to have ever settled down in Rock county to live. The commissioners who placed such low valuations on this western paradise were: Thomas Hughes, J. C. Humphrey and E. C. Milton. Robert C. Wright was commissioner of deeds for the state of Wisconsin and was resident in Chicago.

EX-GOV. PECK ON THE STAGE HERE

Democratic Candidate Portrayed in Role of "The Bad Boy's" "Pa" Next Saturday.

William E. Lewis, for ten years manager of the Boston museum and at present acting as advance man for "Peck's Bad Boy" which appears at the Myers theatre on the afternoon and evening of Sept. 10, made a pleasant call at the Gazette office Saturday evening. He says that the ex-governor and candidate for reelection appears as natural as life in the role of "the boy's pa" but denies that the real Peck left Milwaukee hurriedly because of this realistic presentation, last week. The attraction makes no pretense of having much of a plot. It is a farce-comedy with a number of song and dance specialties that please the audiences. Leba, Donaldson, a character dancer, and Bowman Deaves, banjoist and monologue artist, are in the cast.

Stopped the Mixing: The work of mixing cement for the Court street bridge abutments was stopped by City Bridge Inspector George Crane, Saturday afternoon. Only three men were being employed in the work and the delay in getting the stuff in place after it had been mixed was too long for safety.

EXPOSITION IS RESPONSIBLE

For the Great Scarcity of Railroad Coaches All Over the Country.

The numerous excursions which run daily to St. Louis to carry the exposition visitors have caused a scarcity of railroad coaches all over the United States. Recently some Janesville citizens desired to get up an excursion to Rock Island but the railroad companies declined to figure, stating that they could not spare the use of the coaches for one day even. The numbers going from this section of the country are so large that it is all the railroads are able to do to handle them.

WILL DRILL AT ST. LOUIS FAIR

JANESVILLE FORESTER TEAM OF M. W. A. TO COMPETE.

LEFT SUNDAY ON A SPECIAL

Drill Day at the Exposition Will Be Observed Tuesday, September 6th.

Seventy-one Janesville people took advantage of the cheap excursion rate of the season between here and St. Louis. The train was made up at Madison and carried seventy Capital city folks, including the drill team. The Beloit contingent took a special from Beloit and joined those who left from here and Madison at Bardwell Junction. Beloit furnished the largest delegation, numbering one hundred and ten. The Rockford team and followers also added to the number who went.

Local Teams. The local Foresters team, in conjunction with the Madison, Beloit and Rockford Foresters, under the command of Major C. E. Reynolds of Beloit, will enter the competition drill tomorrow. The prizes offered for the battalion are: first, $450; second, $350; third, $250; fourth, $150. Those from here who are members of the battalion are: Sgt. Maj. S. M. Fisher, Captain E. C. Jones, Sgt. G. F. Barriago, O. A. Mable, G. W. Jones, C. L. Caniff, W. F. Harvey, S. W. Sutton, L. Whaley, M. P. Birmingham, H. Rutledge, A. W. Meyer, R. V. Knox, W. F. Day, H. Jacke, L. L. Hilton, W. H. Green, F. J. Hutchison, W. H. Lohman, F. M. Vosburg.

Among the Janesville people not of the Foresters' team were: Mr. and Mrs. W. Holmes, Ned Helms, D. Brown, C. G. Seakins, J. Trahan, F. Clemmons, J. T. Jarline, Chas. Conrad, Mrs. George Odnes, A. Haw, Mrs. E. Childs, H. H. Blanchard, H. Gaulke, M. Stanton, P. S. Whinslow, W. Watts, W. Shoemaker, and Roy Scott. Many Footville people also left from here. They were: Mr. and Mrs. H. Cory, Mr. and Mrs. E. Dunbar, F. W. Owen, J. Fox, W. Canary, and J. McCullough.

Captain Jones has selected eight men, whom he has been drilling to enter the pony team contest. The prizes for this are: first, $175; second, $125; third, $90; fourth, $75; fifth, $60; sixth, $50; seventh, $30. Those chosen are: Geo. F. Barriago, O. A. Mable, G. W. Jones, C. L. Caniff, S. W. Sutton, L. Whaley, L. L. Hilton, F. M. Vosburg.

Quarters and Regulations. Exceptional advantages have been secured for the Foresters for nine days, from September 4 to 12, inclusive. Modern military barracks have been erected upon the exposition grounds with bath rooms attached and superior sanitary conditions. But one admission fee will be charged uniformed Foresters which they will pay upon assigned to quarters at the barracks, they will be admitted to the grounds, provided they are in uniform, on the pass of the commanding officer. They will have free barracks, free baths, free toilets, free blankets. Although the living expenses to the ordinary visitor at St. Louis are rather high, the visiting Forester escapes all this, as the exposition management has guaranteed a category upon the military grounds who shall furnish satisfactory meals at an expense of twenty-five cents each, which is paid by the Foresters individually. This leaves 75 cents per day for meals and one admission fee as the only expense to be met. Teams are required to remain in uniform and under orders during the week in order to obtain the advantage above given, and will not be permitted to break camp within the nine days unless excused by the commanding officer; must appear in the parade on Wednesday day, and meet the other requirements necessary to accomplish the display of the uniformed branch of the society that is expected of it. But at the same time the prize drills and military duties have been so arranged as to leave every Forester ample opportunity for viewing all the attractions upon the world's fair grounds and in the city of St. Louis itself. Where reasons are shown why a team should return home before the close of camp permission will be promptly given, and except upon parade day, full half of the day time, and nearly all of the evening will be at the disposition of the Foresters.

Woodman Day. Thursday has been designated as Woodman day at the exposition and arrangements are now complete for its observance. September 7 will be Royal Neighbor day. The program is an unusually strong one. Several governors, who are members of the society, will deliver addresses. At 12:30 those distinguished guests will be given a luncheon at the inside inn, and after the exercises at the auditorium, Woodmen officials and their distinguished guests will be tendered a reception by President Francis.

Before the exercises in the auditorium there will be a parade given by Ensignment Forester teams, visiting Woodmen and guests.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE ADAM SANNER HELD THIS MORNING

Many Sympathizing Friends Attend the Services—Interment at Mt. Olivet Cemetery. This morning at 9:15 o'clock the funeral services over the remains of the late Adam Sanner were held from St. Patrick's church. Rev. McGinnity conducted the services and the interment was at Oak Hill cemetery. The W. H. Sargent Post, G. A. R., attended the funeral in a body. The pallbearers were members of the G. A. R. and A. O. U. W., of which societies the deceased was an active member. The pallbearers were J. M. Thayer, William Marsden, Carl Pabst, George Vane, Michael Bowen and Lucius Lee.

WHAT WIS. SUGAR CO. PAY FOR BEETS

Four Dollars and a Half a Ton is This Year's Price for All Averaging 14 Per Cent.

C. W. Fraser, editor of "The Wisconsin Sugar Beet" published at Monomonee Falls, stated in Milwaukee Saturday that the harvesting of the crop would commence in a few days and that the price this year would be $4.50 a ton for all beets which have 14 per cent of sugar, and twenty-five cents a ton additional for each percentage of sugar above fourteen. The Wisconsin Sugar Co. still has a considerable acreage in Rock and neighboring counties.

JANESVILLE TRIMS VISITORS 12 TO 0 IN SECOND GAME.

GROTH WILL PITCH TODAY

And Games Will Be a Walkaway for 'Either Side—Aiken's Good Work.

Port Washington met defeat at the hands of the Janesville baseball team yesterday. The final score was 12 to 0. This was the second of the series of three games to be played with the Port Washington men and the third comes this afternoon. Groth, the star pitcher, who is to play with the Chicago National team next year, will be in the box for the visitors this afternoon.

Aiken Was Good. The Clinton Maroons did not play in Illinois yesterday as had been anticipated and several of the players were drafted into the Janesville team. Frank Aiken, a new addition to the pitching staff, moved down the visiting batters yesterday, striking out eleven men. Rubland Aiken, of Palmer will pitch this afternoon. The story of the game is told in the summary:

MARKET BEING WELL SUPPLIED

The Finest Assortment of Vegetables and Fruits Ever Seen in the City.

For today the local merchants have planned some of the good surplus of the year, and it is expected the market will be filled with all the good things now to be had. The market is being supplied with the choicest lot of vegetables that could be asked for and this year will go down in history as one of the best. The home supplies have been fine and what has been shipped in has been above the average, and it has made the supply one that captivated all.

Today there will be an abundance of sweet potatoes and they will retail at 10 pounds for 25 cents. The vegetable is a good one, too, and the only fear the merchants have is that the supply will not be up to the demand at these prices. In the fruit line there will be plenty of peaches and they will sell at 30 and 35 cents per basket. The shipments that are being made just at present are of the finest kind of fruit and the baskets are filled to the top.

Some choice pines are being shown and they are selling at 30 cents each, but the fruit is fine.

BUYING OF NEW CROP COMMENCED

Shedding of Tobacco About the County is Already Under Way.

The buying of the new crop in the fields of the Vernon county section is now proceeding for the third week. Information reached us that contracts have been placed for more than two thousand acres, says the Edgerton Reporter, and while appearances the first rush is about over, buyers are still quietly increasing their holdings as they watch the manner of harvesting of the crops already purchased to see that no unripe tobacco is cut and growers use proper care in handling from the field to the shed. This precaution is doubtless well taken for it has often been urged as an argument against buying in the fields that growers were disposed to be careless in handling when sales had already been made. It is generally believed that the limit of the buyers now engaged in the movement will soon be reached and unless other dealers join in the list, buying will soon decline for some of the large operators in Wisconsin leaf have as yet been implicated in the deal. The trust buyers, so far, are not in the market.

Edgerton. Buyers are still riding the Crawford and Vernon county sections and quietly contracting for the new crop in the fields at prices ranging from 9 to 11 cents for bundle delivery. The information reaches us that most of the desirable valley crop has been sold and the indications are that fully one half the sound fields will soon be taken over. Ten cents is about the average price named in the contracts. There is a good deal of riding in other growing sections keeping tab on the harvest which is just fairly getting under full swing. Much of the weather of the week has been too cool for rapid maturing of the fields, and there is a large amount of late tobacco that will scarcely reach the sheds without a phenomenal fall without frosts.

The most important transaction of old leaf for some time is the reported sale of the Westly packing of '03 by M. H. Bekkedal to T. B. Earle for the account of the Philadelphia firm of L. Hamberger & Co. The lot comprises 3002 cases of the best Vernon county product. Dealers report a fair inquiry for old stock but sales are of minor importance.

The shipments out of storage continue light—not to exceed 3000s for the week from this market to all points.

P. Hohenadel, Jr., Canning factory will begin operation Tuesday morning, Sept. 6th. All parties having been employed will please report for work at that time.

Will also begin receiving sweet corn from the growers, Monday, Sept. 6th. P. HOHENADEL, JR., CO.

LITTLE FRANCE

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN "THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS KING OF THE SEA

BY CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

Copyright, 1904, by H. Apollon & Co., New York.

About 200 feet away, since it was low tide, the bluffs rose precipitously from the level beach. There was room at their base to disembark the whole army. After Wolfe and the officers, including Grafton, had landed, the light infantry noiselessly clambered out of the boats and advanced toward the foot of the cliffs.

A zigzag path, up which a single file of men might with difficulty make its way, broke the sheer face of the cliff. It had been barricaded with heavy timbers and was at present unscalable.

There was a momentary pause. It seemed as if the whole enterprise, so brilliantly conceived and so successfully carried out hitherto, would be blocked by this unfortunate obstacle. They had succeeded in landing unobserved, but if they attempted to tear down the barricade they would inevitably attract the attention of the negligent defenders at the top of the path. Under such circumstances the attempt would have to be given over. As Wolfe had said, 100 men might hold that towering cliff against an army.

"I think we can scramble up the cliff by the aid of these trees," said Howe at last.

It was a bold proposition. Wolfe looked at him gratefully and approvingly. It was their only chance, and the young general gave the signal for the attempt in these not very encouraging words:

"You may try it, Col. Howe, but I do not think you will succeed. Captain," he added, turning to one of his staff, "tell Gen. Monckton to keep the rest of the men quiet in the boats for a few moments. We may have no need for them."

As he spoke, Howe and his gallant 24 sprang at the cliff. They were soon lost in the shadow covering the face of it, and the watchers below could trace the course of their slow and painful ascent by the crashing sounds they made, as by the aid of stunted trees growing in clumps here and there they made their toilsome way upward. Why the French did not discover them has never been explained.

Presently the sounds died away altogether. The silence was broken by the sound of a musket-shot, followed by another and another. A quick fusillade rang out from the sky above them. They were there, then! They were engaged! What had been the issue?

Concealment was no longer possible or desirable. At a word from their commander the men on shore sprang at the barricades. The scene changed from one of absolute quiet to intense activity.

"Have they won, think you?" asked Grafton.

"We shall know in a moment," answered Wolfe. "If they have lost, somebody will come tumbling down the cliff to tell the tale. Meanwhile, I am staking all on the chance of their success."

The little cove was now filled with noise. Catching the contagion the men began to spring from the boats and fell in on the shore. The feelings of the soldiers, repressed so long through the night, found vent in cheers and cries. Presently a hail came down from the cliff. It was Howe's voice.

"We have the post!" he shouted. "The enemy has fled! The way is open!"

"Hold it at all hazards!" cried the commander.

The cheering men fairly tore the barricades to pieces and scrambled up the path, Wolfe himself in the lead. Capt. de Vergor, who commanded the French guard, was incapable and a coward. He had kept negligent watch. Howe and his handful of men had surprised them. The fall of New France must be laid at the feet of one person; and, singularly enough, the beginning of American independence may be traced to the splendid exploit of the young soldier, who, as a general long after, at Long Island, White Plains, Brandywine, and Germantown did his best to stop its course.

CHAPTER XI.

ON THE ROOF OF THE WORLD.

IT was ten o'clock in the morning. Every available English soldier had been landed on the Quebec side and had scrambled up the cliffs to the Plains of Abraham. The hours intervening since the first attack had not been idle ones. French batteries erected at Samos and Sillery, not far distant, and on either side of the cove, had been gallantly taken by assault, and scouting parties had cleared the adjacent country of stragglers. The sailors under Grafton by herculean endeavor had drawn two six-pounders to the crest of the plateau. Since eight o'clock in the morning these two guns, excellently served by the seamen, had been replying to a heavy fire from the three larger guns of the French, who had begun assembling as early as six o'clock on the hill beyond the English position.

From the covert afforded by the trees and underbrush on the side of the St. Charles river valley, as well as on the St. Lawrence edge, Indian and backwoods sharpshooters had been pouring a gallant rifle fire upon the English, to which no effective reply could be made. The thin red line of soldiers that had so often stood between humanity's progress and the armed world in opposition, keeping open the pathway of the future, was drawn up in three ranks. The lines were not long enough to reach across the plateau, and the left flank, where Townshend commanded, was refused—drawn back at a right angle from the battle front.

Col. Burton, with the light infantry, was held in reserve to anticipate a possible attack from Bougainville. That worthy officer, however, knew nothing of the landing and remained quietly in camp at Cap-Rouge, expecting the return of the British ships with the changing tide. The sky was overcast, and fitful showers, light in character and brief in duration, besprinkled the sod, soon to be wetted by a liquid substance of greater consistency and more ominous color.

If the scarlet-clad Englishmen presented a vivid though menacing picture to the French, the aspect of the latter was sufficiently picturesque to awaken the admiration of their foes. Very handsome the white coats of the French regulars looked against the green grass that morning. Alas! many of them were destined to sport the red colors of England before the day was done.

The two armies were about equal in number. The qualities of the French regulars were as high as those of the British army, but the average of the French forces was sadly diminished by the fact that the larger portion of their army was made up of Canadian militia. These hardy peasants were excellent fighters in forest service, but poor material indeed with which to face regular troops in the open.

But Montcalm had been hasty. He might have waited longer, until Bougainville with his excellent division had joined him, or at least reached a position from which he could support the French attack by a demonstration in force in the rear of the English. Fight the French must, of course, or starve, but they would not have starved in a few hours, and a few hours might have materially changed the situation. There were battery after battery of field pieces back in Quebec which should have been dispatched to Montcalm's assistance. His repeated and most pressing requests to do so, however, the commander had only brought three guns to him, and the cowardly de Vaudreuil, the governor of the province, was holding at Beauport thousands of men idle in their intrenchments, who should have been dispatched to his assistance.

How explain the Frenchman's reckless haste? The fact was that Montcalm had always beaten the English. He had never in his whole career met a single commander among them who appeared to have the slightest military genius, and he made the fatal mistake of despising his foes. Perhaps the fact that they lay there stubbornly taking the galling skirmish fire from the coverts on either flank so silently, in spite of its ghastly effectiveness, replying only to his heavier guns with their two six-pounders, gave him greater confidence; at any rate, at ten in the morning he ordered an advance.

With feverish impatience the English held themselves in restraint under the peremptory orders of their commander. As Wolfe saw the French rising on the crest of the hill, giving evidence of their intention to join battle in close encounter, he walked rapidly up and down his own line speaking those simple, hearty words of encouragement, as he passed by his soldiers, which do much to make a man a hero. A quiver of delight ran through the compact ranks. With fierce pleasure the men looked to their pieces and made themselves ready.

Suddenly the crest of the slope in front of them was tipped with flame and covered with smoke. The rattle of arms crashed over the field. Bullets rang through the morning air. Men were dropping here and there among the ranks of the stolid British; some moaned and shrieked in the anguish of shattered limb or torn body, and some lay still and quiet in the grass, recking little, minding nothing of the roar of battle about them. The French, after the first volley, began firing continuously and irregularly, still advancing.

Suddenly, when the cheering and yelling whitecoats had reached a point perhaps 100 yards away, a sharp command rang out in English. The officers repeated Wolfe's signal.

"Steady! Ready! Aim!"

Do quiet all, for now was the time! The muskets of the waiting red ranks came smartly down.

"Fire!"

The first rank delivered a volley which crashed over the plateau like cannon-shot. Their drill was magnificent. A moment of startling silence supervened and the second rank repeated the performance. Ere the echoes of the discharge had died away among the hills, the third rank sent its sheet of destruction in the face of the advancing men. The field was covered with thick smoke. The English could see nothing. For a moment no reply was made to them. Then a scattered fire, confessing weakness by its feebleness, ran along the French line. Again and again the deadly discharge of the English was poured out. The French seemed to be making no reply at all. Presently there was a slight respite and the smoke cleared away, revealing a horrid picture of carnage.

The crest of the hill was covered with bodies. Most of the horsemen were down. Montcalm and one or two officers were striving desperately to reform their men. The Canadian militia, unable to stand against such a fearful fire, had melted away. The French grenadiers, the white-coated regulars, were rallying in bewildered little knots here and there upon their officers. The French advance was completely barred. Now was the moment to strike.

"The picture?" said Wolfe to Grafton, who was standing by him. "You have it?"

"Here."

"Remember—and good-bye, old friend. Now, gentlemen," he cried, "let us go at them. Forward!"

Like a common soldier the young general, sword up, face smiling, put himself at the head of the Louisbourg grenadiers. The French had at last got into some sort of order, rallying in thin, broken, and exhausted lines. Their courage was superb. They saw death in the advancing mass of the British infantry, but they did not waver. The battle was lost to them; they would strike another blow at any rate.

It was the English who cheered now, the French had passed the cheering stage. This time it was they who poured their volleys into the advancing British. The execution done among them was fearful. A bullet shattered the wrist of the general. He caught a handkerchief about it and pressed on. A second shot hit him, but still he did not falter. A third bullet struck him full in the breast; he staggered a moment and fell. With a fierce yell for revenge his army swept by him. A last volley from the French and bayonets crossed in the smoke.

Wolfe, in the rear of the line, was down and dying. It needed no surgeon to translate the look of death upon his face. Grafton knelt by him and took his hand, tears streaming down his face. The path of glory was indeed ending here. Others quickly assembled where the soldier lay bleeding to death on the field.

"The battle," whispered the dying man. "Tell me?"

"They run! They run!" cried Grafton, rising and surveying the field.

"Who run?" he asked, eagerly opening his eyes and looking up at his friend from where he lay in the arms of the surgeon on the grass, stained red by his own blood.

"The enemy! The enemy! They give way everywhere!"

"Go, one of you, to Col. Burton," said Wolfe, smiling weakly, "and tell him to march Webb's regiment down to the St. Charles river to cut off their retreat from the bridge."

Doctors Say

Drink More

Schlitz

The body requires ten glasses of fluid per day. Most people drink too little to flush the body of its waste. The result is bad blood, nervousness, disease.

Then the doctor says "Drink More;" and he knows this advice to be worth more than medicine.

That's one reason why pure beer is good for you. It leads you to drink more. And the beer is also a food and a tonic. But the beer must be pure. Schlitz beer is brewed in absolute cleanliness and cooled in filtered air. It is aged for months so it will not cause biliousness.

That's why doctors say "Schlitz." Ask for the Brewery Bottling.

MEN WHO SUCCEED.

THIS is said to be an age of young men, and so it is. Never before have young men so thoroughly dominated every branch of the commercial world as they do today. There is, of course, a reason for this. It is not only an age of young men but it is an age of specialists. Young men who appreciate what the world holds for them qualify themselves to become specialists in some line of life work and look to the future for their pay. Looking at the successful men of today, one will see men who, when opportunity presented itself, grasped it; more than that, once grasped they HELD ON. Your opportunity may present itself any moment. Are you ready to grasp it and cope successfully with it?

BOOKKEEPING.

We teach the Sadler-Rowe system of Bookkeeping. This is acknowledged by experts to be the very best and most comprehensive system of double entry bookkeeping in existence. It was perfected by Prof. H. M. Rowe, of Baltimore, Md., who is known as one of the best and highest paid expert accountants in America. Higher Accounting, Auditing and Post Graduate Course included in this course.

AS TO OUR TEACHERS.

Each teacher is an expert. Bookkeeping is taught by men of wide experience both as instructors and accountants covering a great many years of practical and successful work. These men now devote their entire time to teaching and are eminently qualified to assist the beginner in both theory and practice.

CHURCH AND SHRINE

CANTERBURY THE FINEST OF ENGLISH CATHEDRALS.

In Architectural Beauty and Historic Association It is Unrivaled—Temporary Scaffolding at Present Obscures Its Glories.

(Special Correspondence.)

Americans who are coming to England this year and intend visiting Canterbury will be disappointed to hear that builders have just begun to surround the central tower of the famous cathedral with a huge scaffolding by which its beauties will be completely hidden for probably many months to come. The temporary disfigurement is necessitated by the unsound condition of this portion of the structure, which has made its restoration imperative lest the tower should share the fate of Venice's Campanile. Historically known as the "Bell Harry" tower, this crowning achievement of Canterbury's architect is commonly regarded as the finest example of the perpendicular style of church architecture in England, although the name of its designer has not been handed down to posterity. Its construction was begun in 1472, and it replaced a former tower called the "Angel Steeple," a name bestowed on it because of the gilded cherubim who was perched on the pinnacle. It is 235 feet high and 35 feet in diameter, but such is the dignity and stateliness of the design that it conveys the impression of much larger dimensions.

After Westminster abbey and St. Paul's, Canterbury cathedral is the most highly prized of England's churches, both for its architectural beauty and its historic associations. It originated, it is said, in a church formerly used by the Roman Christians, and which St. Augustine consecrated under the name of Christ's church when he became archbishop of Canterbury in 597. Enlarged some 350 years later by Archbishop Odo, it was totally destroyed by fire in 1067. Archbishop Lanfranc rebuilt it, but the choir was again wholly burned down in 1174, and to rebuild it a number of French and English architects were summoned. Among the former was one William of Sens, who turned out to be a man of real genius, and to him the work was intrusted. He died, however, in 1179, before the work was finished, but a worthy successor was found in another William, this time an Englishman, and to him is due the completion of the existing unique and beautiful choir, the choir transept and the corona or circular apse, which, under the name of "Becket's Crown," perpetuates the memory of the famous archbishop who was murdered in the cathedral.

"Of the cowards that eat my bread is there none will rid me of this turbulent priest?" hastily exclaimed King Henry II, wearying of his long quarrels with the soldier-priate and champion of church supremacy. How four knights overheard these hasty words and interpreting them as a royal mandate stole into the cathedral one evening and slew the archbishop before the altar of St. Benedict, every schoolboy knows. Under threat of excommunicating him, the church made King Henry pay a heavy bill of damages for instigating that sacrilegious crime. Becket was canonized and his bones were deposited in a splendid shrine in the cathedral, which for three centuries continued to be the object of one of the great pilgrimages of Christendom. Then came along another King Henry, eighth of the name, the much married monarch, who, caring not a button for excommunication, quarreled with the pope on the question of royal matrimonial rights and privileges, and determined to set up as head of the English church himself. He despoiled Becket's shrine, getting over a score cartloads of treasure therefrom, erased his name from the calendar of the saints and ordered his bones to be burnt and the ashes to be scattered to the four winds.

Whether this was really done, no one can tell at this day. In 1888 a stone coffin, with the remains of a skeleton which some declared to be that of the martyred archbishop, was discovered in the crypt and reburied after careful examination. A curious mosaic pavement still remains in front of the place where the shrine stood, and in the stone steps which lead up to it are deep hollows worn by the knees of countless pilgrims who there resorted in the old days to plead for the intercession and favor of the saint.

The Most Reverend Randall T. Davidson, the archbishop of Canterbury, is to be present at the general conference of the Protestant Episcopal church, to be held in Boston in October. The archbishop of Canterbury, at the time of the founding of Kings college, in 1754, was the first trustee of what is now Columbia university, New York. Dr. Davidson will attend the sesquicentennial jubilee exercises, to be held on Morningside Heights next October, and in all likelihood the prime will deliver an address.

Dr. Davidson was the bishop of Winchester when appointed by King Edward in 1903 to succeed Dr. Temple, as primate of all England. At that time he had been a bishop for 11 years, first occupying the see of Rochester, from which he was transferred to Winchester in 1895. For many years he has been a prominent figure in ecclesiastical life in England, partly through the personal appreciation of his capacity shown by Queen Victoria, who had him appointed dean of Windsor in 1883. Dr. Davidson's views on the chief matters of controversy in the English church are well known. In the house of lords he has gained a high place among the Episcopal statesmen, especially in regard to social movements, and his zeal in educational matters has often been proved.

EACH PERSON TO HIS CALLING.

Bourke Cockran Gives Illustration as to Success in Public Speaking.

Bourke Cockran was asked by a St. Louis reporter to give the public some advice on the art of public speaking.

"A youth," Mr. Cockran answered, smiling, "once went with your question to an old Englishman who had made a good success as a lecturer. 'How may I become, sir,' said the youth, 'a successful public speaker, like yourself?'"

"The old lecturer laughed. 'Tha wants to be a public speaker, do tha, lad?' he said. 'An' tha thinks Awn the chap to put tha up to a wrinkle about it? Tha's right, lad. Ah am.

'Now, hark tha. When tha rises to make the speech, hit thaaba an' ou-pen thy mouth. 'If nowt comes, take a sup o' water an' hit thaaba again, an' open thy mouth wider than afor. 'Then, if nowt comes, tak thyself out, an' leave public speakin' to such as me.'"

Persistence of Mother Tongue.

Congressman Broussard of Louisiana, as his name indicates, of French descent. He never spoke English until he went to Georgetown university. "It is curious," says Mr. Broussard, "how the French language has remained the dominant tongue in my part of the country. Brought there by Acadians of Nova Scotia in the eighteenth century, it prevails to-day, and I believe always will. Curiously enough, you will find plenty of men in my district with such unmistakably English names as Jones and Hayes who can't read, speak or write a word of English. Still funnier is the talk of the black people. Their negro French would be unintelligible in Paris, and yet it is the softest, sweetest, most musical speech I ever heard from human lips. It knows no grammar, but it is the very essence of euphony and melody."

How to Transplant the Arbutus.

The question has often been asked: "Can the arbutus be transplanted?" And we answer: "Yes, it can." If you have an old pine stump in your yard, so much the better; but if not, in the fall find some isolated root and dig a large circle about it, disturbing as little as possible the roots in the lifting, and set out in some shaded southern exposure; or, better still—if you have it on some southeast bank, where it will get the morning sun and the warmth but not direct glare of the afternoon sun; and my word for it, if you have been very careful in the lifting you will be greeted next spring with the dainty little beauties in your own yard.—National Magazine.

Entirely Too Strenuous.

Alfred Henry Lewis, author of "The Boss" and "The President," says that some politicians remind him of a dog about which a resident of Tennessee told him.

"This dog," according to his owner, was an industrious creature," says Mr. Lewis, "and spent much of his time digging for groundhogs. Once the dog started to dig there was no stopping him, and he threw the dirt as if his life depended on the record he was making."

"After he had spent three or four hours digging for a groundhog it was necessary for his owner to get a spade and spend two hours digging out the dog."—New York Times.
